Organisation and Content of Application.

This application contains the proposed constitution and bylaws for a European College of Veterinary Clinical Pathology (ECVCP) and an explanatory information brochure about the college. These together describe and define the a) discipline of veterinary clinical pathology, b) the objectives, structure and organisation of the college, and c) describe the major functions including examination, training, continuing education of its members, and of the development of laboratory standards and of the science for veterinary clinical pathology.

The constitution and bylaws of the proposed ECVCP are modelled after and therefore frequently adhere closely to those of related European colleges, most especially those of the ECVPT, ECVIM, ECLAM, and ECVP. Much of the evidence that the organisation would meet EBVS criteria for the formation of a College have been previously presented to the EBVS in: a) the Letter of Information submitted to the EBVS on Nov 1st 1999; b) the Letter of Intent submitted to the EBVS on Nov 1st 2000, and c) the Letter of Rebuttal to claims that the Veterinary Clinical Pathology should be a subspecialty of ECVP or ECVIM-CA submitted to the EBVS on Mar 30th, 2001. These included a definition of the science, its role in the training of veterinarians, the likely employment of diplomates and the availability of training programs.

Also included is the published abstract of the trans-European survey by the ESVCP on the sufficiency of the number of qualified practitioners, facilities, training and employment opportunities to establish an ECVCP. The survey forms are retained by the ESVCP, and are available for scrutiny, and a summary has already been presented to the EBVS in its Letters of Intent and Rebuttal referred to above.

The Letter of Rebuttal to the EBVS regarding the basis for establishment of an independent ECVCP rather than a subspecialty of an existing college (ECVP, ECVIM-CA) submitted to the EBVS on Mar 30th, 2001 is 29 pages in length, includings its attached references and data. Because of its length, it is not resubmitted here although a published abstract of it is presented below on page 4. The curriculum vitae of the organising committee members and the 15 proposed charter diplomates are included, ordered alphabetically and formatted according to EBVS recommendations. Additionally included are the cv's of 6 persons that are pre-approved for immediate appointment as defacto members as described in the constitution. It is noteworthy that these were selected from 23 persons asking to be made defacto specialists. It is also noteworthy that one of the charter diplomates and two of the proposed defacto specialists are currently ECVIM-CA diplomates. However, all three individuals spend 100% their time in veterinary clinical pathology and prefer to be identified as clinical pathology specialists rather than internal medicine specialists. The persons identified below and their institutions define locations of training opportunities to be first approved for aspiring clinical pathologist. clear=all style='page-break-before:always'>

ESVCP Survey

published in Veterinary Clinical Pathology 2001; 30:155

STATUS OF VETERINARY CLINICAL PATHOLOGY IN EUROPE

Background: A questionnaire about veterinary clinical pathology (VCP; clinical biochemistry, haematology, cytology) was widely distributed in Europe to assess sufficiency of the number of qualified practitioners, facilities, training and employment opportunities to establish a European College of VCP. Results: 99 veterinarians involved with VCP responded from the UK (25), Italy (11), Germany (10), France (9), Austria (7), Sweden (6), Spain (5), and Norway (5), and 13 other countries. ~700 professional, technical and administrative staff worked in VCP at 29 veterinary schools, 9 private practices, 8 commercial laboratories, 7 pharmaceutical companies, and 2 government agencies. Only 14 practitioners had formal certification in VCP, (6 by Fachtierarzt fuer Klinische Laboratoriumdiagnostik, 4 by American Boards, 3 by the Royal College of Pathology (VCP) and 1 by Agregation); 78 were not, although 15 of these were certified in veterinary internal medicine (ECVIM-CA) and 12 in veterinary morphologic pathology (eg ECVP). 32 respondents had a PhD. Respondents practiced VCP for  $\geq$  60% of their time (48), ~50% time (14), ~30% time (15), or <20% time (10), with 81 having >3 years experience and 54 having >10 years experience. Specialisation was in all (33), two (25), or one (19) VCP subspecialties, or in peripheral areas (15). 64 respondents had >3 first-authored publications and 34 had >10; 57 had >3 second-authored publications with 33 having >10. 30 practitioners had no formal training, whereas 8, 7, 8 5, and 32 had received training for 1, 2, 3, 4 and >5 years, respectively, at 11 US, 10 UK, 4 German, 3 Spanish, 2 Swedish, 2 French, 2 Canadian institutes and single sites in 11 other countries. 23 current employment opportunities were identified in academia (18), commercial diagnostic labs (3) and industry (2). Up to 43 respondents were considered to have met criteria of the European Board of Veterinary Specialisation (EBVS) as defacto members, although 6 of these were ECVIM-CA diplomates. 51 respondents voted to establish an independent European College of VCP, including 8 ECVIM-CA diplomates, 8 respondents voted for establishing VCP as an ECVIM-CA subspecialty (including 4 ECVIM-CA diplomates) and 8 respondents voted for establishing VCP as an ECVP subspecialty (including 3 ECVIM-CA diplomates and 3 ECVP diplomates). Training opportunities were identified at 17 schools with VCP in veterinary academic programs, 14 schools with post-graduate programs or residencies, 10 sites with facilities, instrumentation, diagnostic service, and case archives for informal training. 53 are experienced teachers of VCP. Respondents regularly attended annual scientific meetings, workshops and courses on VCP at least once for 24 of them, twice for 35 and thrice or more for 11. Conclusions: This survey unequivocally demonstrates that, based on EBVS criteria and precedence, there is sufficient need, critical mass of qualified practitioners and teachers of VCP, facilities, and training and employment opportunities to establish an independent European College of VCP to oversee training and certification in VCP, and to develop this discipline.

BASIS FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF THE SPECIALTY OF VETERINARY CLINICAL PATHOLOGY AS AN INDEPENDENT COLLEGE RATHER THAN AS A SUBSPECIALTY OF AN EXISTING COLLEGE

Background: The European Society of Veterinary Clinical Pathology (ESVCP) formed a committee to assess whether the specialty of Veterinary Clinical Pathology (VCP) should be established as a subspecialty of the European Colleges with which it interacts with most (Veterinary Internal Medicine [ECVIM-CA] and Veterinary Pathology [ECVP]), or as an independent college. Information was collected from collegiate discussion, interviews, surveys, questionnaires, literature, and discussion with ESVCP members and senior members of related societies (ECVIM-CA, ESVIM, ECVP, ESVG, ACVP, ASVCP, ISACB, AECCP, EBVS). Results: 1) Surveys by various societies document a compelling and widespread need for formal establishment of the specialty of VCP in Europe. 2) VCP has evolved over the last generation to be laboratory-based and clearly distinct and identifiable from all other veterinary specialities in its knowledge base and practices, including methodology, technology, process, and emphasis on laboratory management. 3) There are numerous precedences set by the European Board of Veterinary Specialisation (EBVS) in establishing other colleges based on similar critical mass, need, and distinctiveness. 4) VCP is treated by the Royal College of Pathologists (RCP) as equivalently distinct and identifiable as is morphologic Veterinary Pathology. A poll of RCP members involved with VCP indicated that a majority supported establishing an independent European College of VCP. Examination of the incentives for formation of the American model a generation ago indicated these were no longer in place. 5) There is strong majority support by representative practitioners of VCP across Europe for the establishment of an independent college. 6) In contrast to ECVP, ECVIM-CA had strong ties with VCP based on participation in scientific meetings, journal publications, formal affiliations, and numerous members being qualified to practice VCP. However, in contrast to VCP, ECVIM-CA focused on companion animals. A poll of ECVIM-CA diplomates involved with VCP indicated majority support for establishment of an independent college. 7) Establishment of an independent European College of VCP would enhance the recognition and credibility of this specialty and accelerate its development. There is no real need of existing colleges to include VCP, nor substantive value in doing so. Establishment of VCP as a sub-specialty of an existing college may be inhibitory to the development of VCP and likely the specialty of that college as it would need to be redefined, including the constitution, training and examination programs, and probably the name. Conclusions: All criteria defined by the EBVS for establishing VCP as an independent college are seen to be met. There is compelling rationale, substantial data, and wide-spread majority support for establishment of an independent European College of Veterinary Clinical Pathology.

CONSTITUTION
Nov 2001

INTRODUCTION

The European College of Veterinary Clinical Pathology (ECVCP) will be established according to the general scheme for veterinary specialization in Europe which has been encouraged by the Advisory Committee for Veterinary Training (ACVT report document III/F/5285/3/91) and described in the "Policies and Procedures of the European Board of Veterinary Specialization [EBVS] (1995)". The ECVCP was initiated by the European Society of Veterinary Clinical Pathology (ESVCP) at its first meeting in Vienna on September 26th 1998. Subsequent studies, reviews, and surveys by the ESVCP documented a need for an independent ECVCP and that EBVS criteria had been met for establishing an ECVCP (Veterinary Clinical Pathology 2001; 30:155,167). This College resulted from a growing desire to harmonize postgraduate training and provide certification in veterinary clinical pathology in Europe and a need for well-educated veterinary clinical pathologists with certified experience for leading positions in veterinary schools, commercial and government laboratories, and the pharmaceutical industry.

Veterinary clinical pathology is a discipline-oriented specialisation, which focuses on the development, application and interpretation of diagnostic laboratory procedures for monitoring animal health and the diagnosis, prognosis, treatment and the monitoring of animal disease. It is applied primarily to companion, agricultural, and laboratory animals, but also to aquatic and zoo animals and wildlife.

The primary objectives of the College are to advance veterinary clinical pathology, promote a high standard of veterinary clinical pathology and veterinary clinical pathologists practising in Europe, and to promote research in the area of veterinary clinical pathology in Europe.

This publication provides the Constitution and By-laws of the ECVCP as accepted by the EBVS (May 2002, Utrecht), and an Information Brochure with further information about the ECVCP, including a description of the science, a description of the requirements for admission to the College, a profile of the speciality, and application and examination procedures.

CONSTITUTION OF THE EUROPEAN COLLEGE OF VETERINARY CLINICAL PATHOLOGY

Article 1: NAME AND STRUCTURE

1.1 The name of the College shall be: the European College of Veterinary Clinical Pathology - hereafter referred to as the "ECVCP", hereinafter referred to as "the College"

1.2 The College shall be registered and domiciled in London, England.

1.3 The College shall be a part of the transnational structure for veterinary specialization in the European Community (E.C.), as recommended by the Advisory Committee for Veterinary Training (ACVT) of the E.C., set up by the Council Board Decision 78/1028/EEC of 18 December 1978 and OJ No L 302 of 22 December 1978, in its report document III/F/5285/3/91. The structure includes the Coordinating Committee for Veterinary Specialization (CCVS), the European Board of Veterinary Specialization (EBVS), the Supervisory Committees for the speciality, and the Colleges of Specialists.

1.4 The College shall be incorporated under the laws of England as a non-profit educational organisation. The term for which it is organised shall be indefinite. However, in the event of dissolution of the Corporation, its property shall be distributed for educational purposes as determined by the Council Board.

1.5 The College shall run concurrently with the calendar year, subject to the first society year ending on the last day of December of the year in which the college is established.

Article 2: OBJECTIVES

The College shall have the following objectives:

2.1 To establish standards of training, experience, and examination for qualification as a specialist in veterinary clinical pathology in Europe.

2.2 To further the recognition of such qualified specialists by suitable certification and other means in Europe.

2.3 To develop and supervise continuing education programmes in veterinary clinical pathology in Europe.

2.4 To encourage and promote the establishment of standards for the performance of laboratory procedures in veterinary clinical pathology in Europe.

2.5 To further research and scientific progress in veterinary clinical pathology in Europe.

Article 3: MEMBERSHIP

3.1 The types of membership in this organization shall be:

- (a) Founder Diplomate
- (b) Diplomate
- (c) Honorary Diplomate
- (d) Non-practising Diplomate

3.2 Qualifications for membership:

In accordance with the policies of the European Board of Veterinary Specialisation only veterinarians may become diplomates of European veterinary speciality colleges. Veterinarians elected to membership of the College shall be designated a diplomate of the European College of Veterinary Clinical Pathology and shall be authorised to use the designation of diplomate of the European College of Veterinary Clinical Pathology (Diplomate, European College of Veterinary Clinical Pathology; DipECVCP).

3.3 Founding diplomates shall be specialists selected according to the following criteria in order to establish the College and to enable it to function during the initial period. There are two types of founding diplomates who are not required to submit to examination, charter diplomates and de facto recognised specialists.

(a) Charter Diplomate: These founding diplomates are distinguished and experienced members in the field. There shall be no more than 2 per European country and the number shall be limited to those essential to conduct the business of the speciality and to achieve provisional recognition. They must:

(i) be a member of the organising committee established to achieve provisional recognition of the ECVCP;

- (ii) have achieved distinction in the field and have qualifications far exceeding those proposed as necessary for candidates to take the certifying examination of the College;
- (iii) have at least ten years experience in the speciality, having spent at least their time practicing veterinary clinical pathology;
- (iv) have a PhD or equivalent degree;
- (v) have contributed significantly to the field by research, publication and lectures;
- (vi) be recognised by their peers as leaders in their field and be uncontroversial to the majority of members;
- (vii) be practising in Europe; and
- (viii) be an active member of the ESVCP

(b) De facto-recognised Specialist:

These are founding diplomates appointed by the Charter Diplomates. The de-facto recognition is possible upon application no later than 36 months after provisional recognition of ECVCP by the EBVS. To be appointed one must:

- (i) have at least seven years of experience in the speciality, having spent at least 60 per cent of their time in the speciality;
- (ii) have published at least three original articles in refereed journals relevant to veterinary clinical pathology as first author and at least three additional articles as co-author excluding non-peer reviewed articles, review articles, and proceedings abstracts;
- (iii) normally resident in Europe or, significantly active (at the discretion of the Council Board) in veterinary clinical pathology in Europe; and
- (iv) be an active member of the ESVCP or other European society of veterinary clinical pathology.

3.4 Diplomate: A veterinarian who satisfies the ECVCP requirements as to training, experience, and competence in veterinary clinical pathology hereinafter described in Article 4 shall be eligible. Alternatively, veterinarians who satisfy these ECVCP requirements, but have passed board examinations by comparable colleges outside Europe, or established prior to the ECVCP being established, may be eligible. Election of such candidates shall be accomplished by majority vote of the Council Board after review of their application.

3.5 Honorary Diplomate: A person veterinarian who is not a Diplomate of the ECVCP but who has contributed in an extraordinary manner to the advancement of veterinary clinical pathology may be elected by majority vote as an Honorary Diplomate. Nomination for Honorary Diplomate Status shall be made through the sponsorship of two Diplomates. The sponsors shall furnish the Executive Secretary with such information concerning the nominee, as is required by the Council Board, e.g. curriculum vitae. Election of an Honorary Diplomate shall be accomplished by a two-thirds vote of the Council Board and by a two-thirds vote of the Business Meeting of the College. Honorary Diplomate status does not confer the right to act as a specialist in veterinary clinical pathology. Honorary Diplomates shall have all the privileges of membership except the right to vote or hold office and shall pay reduced dues.

3.6 Non-practising Diplomate: A diplomate who has not practised the speciality for two continuous years or the equivalent of two years during a period of 5 years, or has not attended an annual general meeting of the ECVCP for three years without previous dispensation from the ECVCP will be designated as a non-practising diplomate in the register. A member seeking to revert to full Diplomate status needs to satisfy the Council Board that they again meet the criteria for full Diplomate status, such as through practice of veterinary clinical pathology, and evidence of continuing educational activities. Any ECVCP diplomate who has retired from the practice or teaching of veterinary clinical pathology may be designated a Non-practising Diplomate by the Council Board, at the diplomate's request. Non-practising Diplomates will be requested to pay a reduced fee in order to maintain all the privileges of diplomates, except the right to vote or hold office.

3.7 Only diplomates of good standing with no dues in arrears shall be eligible to vote or hold office.

3.8 All diplomates are required to maintain activity in veterinary clinical pathology, maintain certification by continuing education in a form determined by the Education Committee, and maintain activity in the affairs of the College, particularly by regular attendance at meetings.

3.9 In order to evaluate the requirements laid down in section 5 and 8 of this article the diplomats are required to send in each 5 years a summary of their professional activities in which evidence of fulfilling these requirements and evidence of continuous education must be included. The format of this summary has to be approved of by the European Board of Veterinary Specialisation and will be evaluated by members of the Credential Committee.

Article 4: GENERAL REQUIREMENTS FOR BOARD EXAMINATION

4.1 The following prerequisites must be met to the satisfaction of the Council Board before any candidate is eligible to undertake any Board Examination in veterinary clinical pathology. An eligible candidate must:

(a) have a satisfactory moral and ethical standing in relation to the practice of veterinary medicine;
(b) be qualified to practice veterinary medicine in Europe, unless relieved from this requirement in exceptional cases by the Council Board;

(c) normally resident in Europe or, at the discretion of the Council Board, significantly active in veterinary clinical pathology in Europe

(c) complete a 1-year rotating internship, or 2 years in clinical practice, or an equivalent training acceptable to the Credentials Committee as a prerequisite to entering the clinical pathology training programme

(de) normally complete at least 3 years of post-graduate training and experience in veterinary clinical pathology that is acceptable to the Council Board. Acceptable means a training programme of at least three years that is directed by a Diplomate of the ECVCP and is approved by the ECVCP Credentials Committee at an institute with a clinical pathology laboratory approved by the ECVCP Laboratory Standards Committee;

(ef) if either the supervisor is not a Diplomate or the programme does not provide training in veterinary clinical pathology as one of its primary functions, then 4 years of training in veterinary clinical pathology are required. One of these 4 years must be spent in training under the supervision of a Diplomate and in a programme that trains veterinary clinical pathologists as one of its primary functions. At least one month per year for each of the other 3 years must be spent attending courses or at another institution for training in veterinary clinical pathology;

(fg) have been the first author of an original article which demonstrates application of scientific methods on subjects that are relevant to veterinary clinical pathology. The article must have been published or accepted for publication in a peer-reviewed journal. The article may be a case report with literature review, an evaluation or validation of diagnostic methodology or technology in clinical pathology, a retrospective or prospective study of clinical pathology changes in a disease or toxic state, or a pathophysiological study of clinical pathology change.

(gh) normally be active in veterinary clinical pathology for at least 60% of their normal working week.

4.2 Application will be made to the Secretary in a prescribed form and will be accompanied by an examination fee fixed by the Council Board. Letters of reference from supervisors and others are to be sent directly to the Secretary:

4.3 Eligible candidates will be examined by an Examination Committee appointed by the Council Board at the time and place fixed by the Council Board and in accordance with the policy established by the Council Board.

Article 5: OFFICERS AND Council Board*

Article 6 - AMENDMENTS

6.1 Any proposed amendment to this Constitution and to the by-laws, signed by at least three members in good standing, shall be submitted to the Council Board for its recommendation. The proposed amendment with the recommendations of the Council Board will be announced at least thirty (30) days in advance of any regular or special meeting of the College at which time the proposed amendment may be discussed.
